Sensational After-Inventory Reduction Most

THIS last reduction comes as a fitting climax to our Clean-up Sale. It means the biggest saving event ever held on High-Grade Clothing. There's a good many fine Suits and Overcoats here that must be closed out regardless of their value. Of course, it's only fair to tell you that the $40 and $35 Suits are all sold, but there's a sprinkle of $30.00 values left and a good bunch of $25, $22.50 and $20 Suits and Overcoats here for you to select from. Even if you don't need the clothes you can well afford to buy in this sale and lay aside for next fall. Many of the styles are staple and conservative---just as good next winter as now. The reason why we've reduced them so much is to turn them into cash; and to keep from carrying them over---that's our rule.

objects will not be accomplished. Inwill bake into a hard clod. The furrow slice will also turn up cloddy if the soil is too dry.

A good way to tell when a field is in proper condition to be plowed is to squeeze a ball of the dirt in your hand. If it sticks together in a pasty mass I urgently request all persons indebted to me to make settlement before the first day of May, 1909, as I will after that date bring suit on every unpaid note and account due me. Now your account is to each of you a small matter, while the whole is to me very important. I shall deal s to me very important. I shall deal the truth of the old saying that "a

If the plowing is done in the fall it one up the nerves, and impart vigor does not matter so much whether it and energy to the weak. Your money turns up cloddy or not. The bard will be refunded if it falls to help freezes of winter are the best pulverizers that ever tore a clod to pieces. This is one of the advantages of fall Plattery would be without force plowing. One of the disadvantages is that in an open winter the soil is itable to wash badly. This can be pre vented to some extent, however, by planting a catch crop, such as oats or millet, on the field after plowing.

The depth of plowing will vary with the conditions. A light, sandy soil does not need to be plowed as deeply as a heavier one. If the ground is plowed the same depth every year the and the roots will have difficulty in getting through it readily. A good plan is to begin at, say four inches, and plow one-half inch deeper each year until a depth of seven or eight inches is reached. Then go back to four inches and begin over again. In this way a little new soil is turned up every season and the layer of surface soil gradually deepened.

· Spring plowing should be shallower than that done in the fall. The soil is full of tiry peres, its structure being much the same as that of light bread. If you will put one corner of a slice of bread in a dish of water you will notice that it becomes wet for a considerable distance above the surface of the water. This is caused by the moisture flowing upward through the little holes in the bread. The force that causes water to rise in a small tube is called capillarity. It is this capillarity that makes the water rise from the subsoil up to the surface where the roots can use it. The smaller the capillary tubes the faster and higher the water will rise. When the ground is plowed these capillary tubes are broken up, and the rise of water is checked. To start it again the soil must be allowed to settle for a long time or else be worked down with the disk, harrow or roller. In the fall the depth of plowing does not matter, since the furrow slice will have all winter in which to settle. But in the spring this capillarity must be restored and later growth will be checked. Hence the importance of shallow plowing, so as to reduce the labor of disking and harrowing. If the surface of the ground is crusted or if there is much trash to be turned under the field should be disked before it is plowed. This will provide for a layer of fine dirt in the bottom of the furrow, which will pack down closely and help to restore capillarity. If the furrow turns up "shiny" or shows any tendency to bake into clods it should be harrowed every half day, or every day at least. This seems like a great deal of extra work, but if a harrow is kept in the field it does not take long to hitch on to it and go over the newly plowed strip just before quitting for noon or night. A few minutes spent in harrowing at such one disking before sowing and one afterward will cover them better than two after sowing. The drill is becoming more popular for sowing oats, and justly so. It places the seed at an even depth and covers them all. It saves seed because it places all of it where it has an opportunity to grow. After the oats are drilled or disked in at least two harrowings should be given. Even three or four would not be too many, since this is the last chance to cultivate the erop.

In some parts of the corn belt the practice of listing corn is followed. This consists in throwing up a large furrow and planting the corn in the bottom of it. In this case there can be little previous preparation of the ground unless it is to go over it once with the disk. Corn is listed only of very light soils, which do not puddle or become cloddy easily. Such soils need less preparation than the heavier clays and loams.

Another large crowd of enthusiast saw the Elks' basketball team win tet last night at the Eagles' gymnasium by a score of 15 to 7. However, the score does not indicate how warm the game was, and the Knights played a hard game throughout.

A second practice game was played tween the Light and Power team and the D. A. D., in which the D. A. D. team won by the score of 27 to 20. The game was declared the best on a local floor this season.

In the first game the first half end ed with the score 11 to 5 in favor of the Elks, and this lead was maintained in the second half. The stars of the Elks were Davis and Goodn whose good work landed the ball in the basket more than once. On the K. C. team there was no particular star, but every man worked his hard-

In the second game the first hair ended 11 to 12, and this tight score was continued throughout. Although the game did not count in the standing the playing was the best in Paducall this year, and the way the boys worked the ball down the floor was a surprise. Several hard throws that counted were cheered by the crowd
